Assignments

Assignments are made based on the intern's strengths, growth areas, and interests. Areas of emphasis include but are not limited to: recreation programming, event planning, facility management, marketing, supervision, personnel management, health and wellness, and sports.

Interns will also receive a schedule of department seminars. These seminars will introduce interns to every aspect of a public parks and recreation department.

Career Assistance

The Department offers numerous career preparation opportunities, including continuing education and training, resume and cover letter development, and access to state and national park and recreation and other professional associations.

Evaluation

The intern's supervisor completes a mid-term and final evaluation, according to each school's/college's/university's requirements. The evaluations include verbal and written feedback. It is vital that the intern and supervisor discuss questions and concerns throughout the internship period, so there are no surprises in the evaluation. Good communication is vital for interns to gain maximum experience and knowledge in a short time. The intern may review the written evaluation prior to its submission to the school/college/university. The intern is also expected to evaluate the internship experience in writing and to discuss the experience with the intern supervisor.

Feedback from interns is welcome and encouraged, and is used by the Department to provide more valuable internship experiences in the future.
